A PARTY PROTESTS AGAINST A ORDER OF COURT.

It is a well settled rule that the writ of mandamus never issues where the relator has an adequate remedy by appeal.
The supreme court disclaims any general superintending control over the district courts, and limits summary actions to those cases where its interposition is necessary for the maintenance of its appellate jurisdiction.
Before a mandamus will issue it must be shown the relator has in vain applied to the inferior tribunal for relief.
The supreme court will review decisions of the district judges, but will not compel them by mandamus to decide according to the dictates of any judgment but their own.

Mr. Justice Ilsley rendered the opinion of the court:

The state of Louisiana, ex-relatione Lucien Harris, vs. the Judge of the Thirteenth Judicial District, parish of Madison—No. 1107. Lucien Harris, the relator, sets out in his petition that on the 25th October, 1866, as assignee of W. H. Harris, lessor of two large plantations to Theodore N. Boss, lessee, he sued out a writ of provisional seizure before the Hon. E. D. Farrar, judge of the thirteenth judicial district for the parish of Madison, to secure the sum of $25,000, the price of the rent for the said premises leased to the said Boss, said suit being styled Lucien Harris vs. T. N. Boss, No. 201, on the docket of the said court; that in pursuance thereof, the sheriff of the said parish was proceeding to execute the said writ of provisional seizure by seizing and taking into his possession the products and moveables on the plantations leased, when he was arrested from further proceedings by an ex parte order of the said judge, (not made in open court,) directing the said sheriff of Madison parish to release the property provisionally seized in this case, on defendant's bond, with security; and he prays for a mandamus, to compel the district judge to set aside, avoid and annul his ex parte order prohibiting the sheriff from executing the writ of provisional seizure according to law.

The district judge, by his answer, admits the facts recited, and says, among other things, that the plaintiff has mistaken his remedy; that if the order to bond was wrongfully granted, it should be corrected on appeal.

The only question we have to solve is not as to whether the proceeding complained of was improvident and irregular, but whether the case before us is one in which a mandamus ought to issue, and we are all of the opinion that this is not such a case.

If there is any rule in our jurisprudence well and definitely established, it is that the writ of mandamus never issues where the applicant has an adequate remedy by appeal. See the cases reported in the 2d anl., 279, 3 an., 716; 8 an 92; 9 an., 250, 10 an., 420.

In the case of the state to the judges of the fourth district of New Orleans, the court sets the question at rest. It says, considering the importance of the subject, and the frequency of such applications, we have taken pains long since to define the powers of this court touching the writ of mandamus, and explains the circumstances under which it would be issued.

It seems surprising, then, at this late day, any misconstruction on the subject should exist. It is abundantly settled that this court disclaims any general superintending control over the district courts, and limits its summary actions to those cases where its interpositions is necessary for the maintenance of its appellate jurisdiction.

These principles were repeatedly recognized by our predecessors, and we consider them as resting upon a wise policy, and a sound exposition of the constitution under which our state has been governed. From those principles was naturally deduced the well settled rule that a mandamus will not be issued where the applicant has an ample remedy by appeal. The order, as the relator declares, would cause him irreparable injury, and, as the case is an applicable one, a direct appeal from the order, which is and interlocutory judgment, would lie. Seghers vs Antleman. 1 N. S. 93. Newell vs. Morton. 3 Rob., 103. Duplesses vs. Lastrappes. XI. Rob., 453.

The two cases cited by the relator in support of his application, have no bearing in a case like the present one, which we consider very analagous to the one decided by us in the case of the state on the relation of Alter vs. the judge of the fourth district court of New Orleans, reported in XVII. An., at page 282. For the case of the state vs. the judge of the commercial court of New Orleans, one of the cases relied on by the relator, the mandamus was not granted, the court observing that it is an extraordinary writ, and should only be issued in a case of great necessity, when clearly shown, and before we will issue it, it must appear that the appellant has applied in vain to the inferior judge for relief. No such a showing is made in this case.

In the other case, the State vs. the Judge of the second district court of New Orleans, XIII, An., 481, the other case cited, the court said, and emphatically, "it is clear that this court cannot, in a proceeding by mandamus, revise the action of the district judge." The relief prayed for in that case was for a rule nisi directing the district judge to show cause why he should not make the necessary order appointing Fonda and Rodd, tutor and under tutor to the said minor, on the terms recommended by the family meeting, or that he reject the same, and proceed on his own responsibility to appoint a tutor or an under tutor according to law, and in that case, whether properly or not, the rule was discharged. Whatever remedy the relator may have, it is not that of a mandamus. We will review the decisions of district judges when properly presented to us, but we will not, by mandamus, compel them to decide according to the dictates of any judgment but their own. The complaint of the relator must be dismissed. Art. 842, code of practice.

It is therefore ordered, adjudged and decreed, that the complaint of the relator, Lucien Harris, be, and the same is hereby dismissed, and that he pay all costs.

E. W. Huntington, for appellee; Geo. L. Bright for appellant; B. L. Lynch, for state.

A "Timber Hat."

Somewhere about the year 1780 (so runs the tale), a traveling millwright—in those days the king of mechanics—footsore, and with the broadest northern doric accent, stopped at Scho, a locality once indicative of field sports, but then the engine factory of Boulton & Watt, and asked for work.

His aspect was little better than one of "beggary and poor looks," and Mr. Boulton had bidden him God speed to some other workshop, when, as he was turning away sorrowfully, Mr. Boulton called him back and inquired:

"What kind of a hat have you on your head, my man?"

"It's just timber, sir."

"Timber, my man? Let's look at it! Where did you get it?"

"I just made it, sir, my ain'sel."

"How did you make it?"

"I just turned in the lathie."

"But it is oval, man; and a lathe turns things round."

"Aweal! I just guar'd the lathie gang anither gait to please me. I'd a long journey afore me, and I thocht I'd have a hat to keep out the water; and I had na muckle siller to spare, and I just made one."

By his inborn mechanism the man had invented the oval lathe and made his hat, and the hat made his fortune. He became a distinguished machinist.

In a certain Sabbath school the superintendent made a powerful appeal to the scholars to be active and useful, and among other things he told them they should all be locomotives, each taking along his train to heaven. The next Sabbath, just as the school opened, in came one of the best and most zealous boys with thirteen new scholars behind him and went up the aisle uttering a noise, choo, choo, imitative of the engine, to the amazement of the superintendent and scholars.

"What does this mean?" asked the astonished superintendent.

"Why," answered the boy, "you said we must all be locomotives; and here I am with thirteen cars behind me."

AN INDORSER OF A PROMISSORY NOTE SEEKS THE NEW TRIAL OF A JUDGMENT RENDERED AGAINST HIM.

The statements of notaries in regard to extrinsic facts concerning demands or service of notices is not even prima facie evidence of such facts, which must be proved dehor the certificates.

Mr. Justice Ilsley rendered the opinion of the court:

Philip Drumm vs. J. H. Bradfute, and D. B. Penn, No. 810. Appeal from the fourth district court of New Orleans. The defendant, D. B. Penn, sued as the indorser of a promissory note, pleaded the general issue. Judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiff, whereupon the defendant moved for a new trial, which failing to obtain, he appealed.

On the trial of the case in the court below, the defendant Penn objected to the admission of the note in evidence, and of all other testimony to prove his indorsement of the note sued on, on the ground that the petition contained no allegation that the note sued on was indorsed by him. The note and the accompanying documents, viz: the protest and the certificate of the notice of protest were annexed to the petition as a part of it, and this with an allegation that the plaintiff was the owner and holder of the note would convey notice of the indorsement of the defendant, which was apparent upon the note. See Nett et al. vs. Brander, 14 La. 370.

It would certainly have been more regular that the plaintiff should have specially alleged the indorsement, but as that fact was revealed by the note which made a part of the petition, the defendant could not be surprised by the introduction of evidence to prove it.

No objection was made to the act of protest, and the notice of protest, which were in proof, but the defendant contends that it is not shown that he ever was notified of the failure of the drawer to pay the note, or of the protest, and that he is therefore discharged.

The notary's certificate reads thus: "A notice to D. B. Penn was left at the residence of J. P. Shortridge, his attorney in fact, with a female white servant, the said Shortridge, attorney, not being in." The act of the legislature of 1817, re-enacted in 1855, make the certificate of the notary a notice of protest on an indorser, evidence of all matters therein stated, but that evidently means of all matters which it is his duty to certify, not of extraneous facts, such as of the fact of agency of a party on whom a demand is made or a notice served.

This was the view on this question taken by the court in Fortier vs. Field, XVII La. Rep., in which the court remanded the case for a new trial, because there was no other proof than the statement of the notary in his certificate that Frey, from whom he demanded the payment of the note, was the agent of the drawer of it.

We hold this to be the correct doctrine that the statements of notaries of extrinsic facts in relation to demands or service of notices in these certificates, is not even prima facie evidence of such facts, which must be proved dehors the certificate.

No such evidence was adduced by the plaintiff, and the case must be remanded.

It is therefore ordered, adjudged and decreed, that the judgment of the district court be annuled, avoided and reversed, and that this case be remanded for a new trial, the appellee paying costs of appeal.

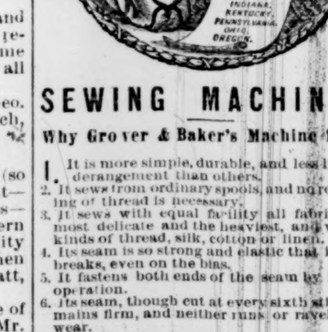

Samuel Flower, for appellant; T. H. Howard, for appellee.

A London letter writer quotes a remark which he once heard the late Mr. Thackeray make in speaking to a contributor to the Cornhill Magazine: "It is very well for you young authors," he said, "to take your two guineas a page, and claim copyright in a reprint; many a long year I worked for Fraser at $8 a sheet of sixteen pages—double columns, you know—and even thought it glorious pay."

GROVER & BAKER'S CELEBRATED

Elastic Stitch and Lock Stitch

SEWING MACHINES!

Why Grover & Baker's Machine is Best

1. It is more simple, durable, and less liable to derangement than others.
2. It sews from ordinary spools, and no re-winding of thread is necessary.
3. It sews with equal facility all fabrics, the most delicate and the heaviest, and with all kinds of thread, silk, cotton or linen.
4. Its seam is so strong and elastic that it never breaks, even on the bias.
5. It fastens both ends of the seam by its own operation.
6. Its seam, though cut at every sixth stitch, remains firm, and neither runs or ravels in its wear.
7. Its seam is more plump and beautiful, and retains its plumpness after washing better than any other.
8. Its seam can be removed in altering garments, after proper inspection, without picking or cutting them.
9. Watching and varying the tensions upon the threads, necessary in other machines, is unnecessary in this. The tension being once adjusted on the Grover & Baker Machine, any amount of sewing may be done without change.
10. It makes beautiful embroidery without any change or arrangement, simply by inserting threads of suitable sizes and colors for this purpose. It is the only machine that both embroiders and sews perfectly.

The attention of Tailors, Manufacturers of Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Carriage Trimmers and all others requiring the best and most effective Lock-stitch Machines, is invited to our new Shuttle Machine, especially adapted to Manufacturing purposes.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Sept. 1, 1866.

We have this day associated with us in business, Mr. H. M. BUGHER, under the name and style of Anderson, Gay & Bugher. ANDERSON & GAY.

DEAR SIR:

We would respectfully call your attention to our card above. Having been long engaged in the Grocery and Cotton Factorage business in this place, with superior facilities for the transaction of the same, and an intimate knowledge of the wants of the planting community, we feel confident we can conduct your business to your advantage and entire satisfaction. Our GROCERY DEPARTMENT, with the increased facilities at our command, together with our long experience in the trade, we can guarantee to our friends and customers a full and varied stock, which will enable us at all times to fill their orders promptly and at the lowest market rates. One of our house will devote his entire time and attention to the sale of COTTON. Having a thorough knowledge of the same, and being sellers only, we can at all times obtain the highest market prices. We are prepared to make advances on Cotton consigned to us. All consignments of Cotton will be covered with Insurance in our open policy, unless otherwise ordered. By a strict attention to business, we trust to merit a continuance of the liberal patronage already extended us. Soliciting a share of your business, we remain, very respectfully, ANDERSON, GAY & BUGHER.

The disastrous results of the late war having forced me to dispose of most of my property, I have concluded to undertake this business, here in the midst of my old friends, for the purpose of making an honest living for myself and family by my own labor, and to retrieve, as far as it may be possible, the losses entailed by the late war. To my old friends, and to all who may feel disposed to give me their business, I pledge my personal attention to its efficient transaction. se22

THE PUBLIC DEBT AND THE TARIFF.

The Baltimore Gazette has some judicious remarks on these prolific subjects. We believe that the masses are sooner brought to realize the unequal burdens of taxation which the western and southern states are compelled to bear on account of discrimination in favor of the manufacturing states, by showing in as short a space as possible its practical working. Great Britain is burthened with a public debt of four thousand millions of dollars, the interest on which is paid from her internal tax receipts and customs duties, these being limited to revenue purposes and not for protection.

The United States has a public debt of about two hundred and seventy millions of dollars, on which the interest is also derived from her internal tax receipts and customs duties, based upon a high protective tariff. A single illustration will serve to show more clearly than any amount of argument the difference between taxation for revenue purposes merely, as in England, and a tariff that is designed to protect the manufacturing interests at the expense of the mass of the people, as in this country.

The cost of the principal articles of an outfit of the best quality in the two countries will compare as follows:

	United States.	England.
1 Superfine West of England black suit	$100 00	£6 00
1 Wearing tweed suit	80 00	2 10
1 Winter overcoat	80 00	3 00
1 Hat, silk	8 00	14
1 Pair boots	14 00	2 00
1 Pair golloshoes	10 00	16
1 dozen French kid gloves	21 00	1 12
1 Dozen socks	8 00	8
	$324 00	£17 00

It will be seen that the aggregate expense of the above named articles in England is but seventeen pounds sterling, or, in greenbacks, at the present rate of gold, including the rate of exchange, one hundred and ten dollars, whilst it takes three hundred and twenty-four dollars to purchase similar articles in this country. Now, as the lower rate of wages paid to operatives in England, as compared with the rate here, can only affect the relative cost of production in a comparatively slight degree, it is quite obvious that the margin of profit left to the manufacturing corporations of this country must be enormous, and, of course, the great bulk of the people must suffer grievously by this unjust discrimination.

THE STEPHENS AFFAIR.

No two of the New York papers agree in their reports of what transpired at the Fenian meeting on Thursday evening. One says that affairs are all at "sixes and sevens;" another says that harmony will never come out of any arrangement in which STEPHENS is to bear sway, and a third declares that all is well—that STEPHENS condescends to manage the civil affairs of the organization and will permit the order to make choice of its military directors. Until something official appears concerning STEPHENS' status, and the future views of the American Fenians, all reports will be unreliable.

THE FINANCIAL PROSPECTS.

A dispatch from Washington says that Secretary MCCULLOCH, in conversation with a gentleman of that city upon the subject of the finances, last evening, said that he regretted to find the future prospects so unfavorable and forbidding. It was his earnest desire to secure practical measures of reform in this important matter, but his plans were seriously obstructed by the political complications that had been sprung upon the country, and which threatened to retard, if not break up, all the efforts which he might put forth.

A COMPROMISE.

We learn from the New Hampshire Statesman that the liquor dealers of Laconia, in that state, have agreed to abandon the traffic, and sell only ale and cider; the apothecaries will sell for nothing but medicinal and mechanical purposes, and the hotels only to actual traveling guests, and keep no open bars. This arrangement was brought about by a committee of citizens, and went into effect on the first of January. If the agreement is violated, the law will be rigidly enforced.

A CURIOUS WILL.

A Montpelier (Vt.) paper says that a farmer who recently died in that neighborhood, disposed of all his property (about $6000 after paying debts,) by giving it to his wife for life, if she shall remain unmarried, and after her de[illegible] the whole to be expended in erecting a monument; but if the wife shall marry she is to receive $2000, and the remaining sum of $4000 is to be expended upon the monument; and, in erecting it, the executor is required to take good advice and expend the money judiciously and economically. The deceased has no children.

Richmond has a number of convicts in her prison, and wanted to, make them work for their living. To this end the authorities instituted a chain-gang, and set the prisoners to work in the street. Early one morning they were sent out, but one of their number, finding that there was no law to compel them to work, flatly refused to bear a hand, an example which was followed by all the others. So the investment is a failure.

From Alabama and other portions of the south complaints reach us of a disinclination on the part of the freedmen to enter into engagements for the present year, and fears are expressed that much productive land will be left uncultivated from an inability on the part of the planters to obtain the necessary labor. This is a serious evil, as embarrassing now to the planters who are determined, if possible, to make up for the losses of the past year, as it will certainly prove disastrous to the freedmen when the want which must inevitably follow idleness overtakes them.

COAL.

The quantity of coal transported on twelve railroads and canals in Pennsylvania, last year, was 12,235,963.17 tons, against 9,581,685.03 in 1865. At an average price of $5 50 per ton, the total value of the coal for 1866 at tidewater would amount to $67,396,800.

A Wife and Her Mother Murdered by an Infuriated Husband.

CHICAGO, January 16.—A terrible tragedy occurred about five miles northeast of Valparaiso, Ind., last night. A young man named Chauncy Page had a difficulty with his wife, whom he left about a year ago, and in the meantime she had applied for a divorce.

He visited her yesterday, and found that she, with her mother and a hired girl, would be alone that night. He went to Valparaiso, but returned about ten o'clock, desiring admittance. Being asked who was there, he said "Page." His wife replied that it was too late to receive company. He then dashed down the door, and, as Mrs. Long, his wife's mother, was coming toward him to open the door, he fired at her with a revolver, when she fell, pleading for her life.

He then passed to another room, where his wife and the girl were. His wife having sprung out of bed, he caught her by the arm, and, pointing the revolver to her head, shot her dead. The girl being covered closely, he did not at first observe her; but, seeing her feet uncovered, he dragged her from the bed, shooting her four different times, none of the shots proving fatal. He then pounded her head with a wooden chair until he supposed her dead, and then set fire to the house.

The girl, however, recovered sufficiently to get out of the house before the fire reached her. The house was burned to the ground. Mrs. Long's body was nearly consumed, while a shapeless trunk is all that remains of the wife. The girl is horribly mangled, but may recover.

No clue to the whereabouts of the murderer has been ascertained as yet.—Cincinnati Commercial.

TRICHINÆ IN PORK.

A letter to the agricultural bureau, from CHARLES J. SUNDELL, consul at Stettin, in Prussia, announces the scourging of another locality by the fatal effects of introducing pork affected with the parasites into the human system. It also notices the recent terrible ravages by cholera in Stettin, by which 2118 died of 3416 attacks, among a population of 80,000. The following extracts are made:

About that most dreadful disease in swine called trichinæ, nothing further was heard here since the Hadersichen calamity in January and February last, until recently; the appearance of said malady is now being reported from the city of Griefswald, in this province. The meat of one single animal, and that infection was discovered, seems to be enough to infest with these parasites over sixty persons, and among these some of the best men there. The sufferings from this shocking intrusion into the system is said to be attended with most distressing agonies, and it is feared that many of those affected will pay with their lives for yielding to that peculiar taste for raw, chopped, or insufficiently cooked and smoked meat, so prevalent in this country. It is stated that those who had partaken of sausages prepared fresh from the infected meat, and only superficially smoked, are subject to worse pains than those who had eaten cutlets and other dishes insufficiently cooked. It follows, therefore, that the greater the heat to which such meats are subjected the surer will the parasites therein be made harmless, and this is a simple fact which cannot be too strongly impressed upon the mind in a country like ours, where pork is so extensively eaten. It is also contended that by cutlets it is hardly possible to have the heat penetrate the meat sufficiently without burning some portion of the chops. The simple remedy would be to prepare cutlets without bones, and so with all other dishes from swine's meat.

The scientific commission of the medical fraternity in Prussia gave us their decision, under date of the 14th of February last, that microscopical examinations of certain (enumerated) parts of the swine would be the surest way to prevent these fearful diseases. The government has, therefore, now recommended microscopic meat inspections, and that much care be taken in thoroughly cooking and preparing, but such examinations have not been made obligatory. This advice, as the Griefswald calamity proves anew, is discreet and well meant, but butchers and meat sellers here seem to care little about it, and it is now publicly proposed that those who sell trichinous meat be made responsible for the consequences. Thus it will be seen that the people here are in earnest to guard, if possible, against the recurrence of this late discovered ill that human flesh is heir to."

PETROLEUM MINING DURING THE PAST SEASON.

The immense petroleum production of 1866, estimated to exceed 3,000,000 of barrels, is rather a puzzle to croakers, the burden of whose song has even been that petroleum would soon play out. The fact that with a less amount of development than any year heretofore the production, in the sixth year of its age, should more than double the amount of its yield, is well calculated to startle even the most practical. If the petroleum pet in the sixth year of its age holds out this well, a first class deluge of oil may be expected by the time it is of age. Save Tidioute, the Stevenson, Bennyhoof, and portions of the smaller inhabitants of Oil Creek, no new territory, or rather new oil farms, have been developed. None of the old farms have been developed to any great extent in comparison to the amount of acres owned by them. Many farms of 500 acres have not, on an average, developed over seventy-five acres of the same. What is considered thorough development among practical men, is a well on each acre. The extent of the present Venango oil field, not including that below Franklin, will not probably exceed thirty square miles. Very few of the farms comprised in the same have been developed to as great an extent as we have named above. The bluff or hill territory of the oil region has not been developed until within the past year. The development has as yet, save perhaps in a few localities, been more of an experimental than practical nature. The experiment, so far as it has gone, proves that the existence of oil in the hills, in as great quantities as in the valleys, is a fixed fact, and that the chances of obtaining good producing wells, of longer duration, and as good quality of oil, and equal to that of the valleys.

This hill development will doubtless be carried on upon a large scale during 1867, and will supply an ample amount of territory for all who have any desire to develop new oil lands.

But we contend that no particular necessity exists for new oil territory to develop, for many years to come. By the proper management of the old oil farms, such as drilling a limited number of wells, the casing of those already drilled, and the application of more improved machinery, the old farms can be made to supply all the oil that will be wanted. We have no idea that our advice will be heeded. So long as territory undeveloped, is within reach, it will possess great attractions to many. The first operations will skim the surface only, while those that follow will reap the harvest.

The low prices that have ruled during a greater portion of the year 1866, will prove really beneficial to operators during 1867. The low prices only serve to introduce petroleum into places and uses, which high prices prevented. Notwithstanding the immense amount of the product shipped to foreign countries during 1866, we have the best of reasons for asserting that the exports for 1867 will greatly exceed it. That the markets of Europe are far from being glutted we have every reason to believe, while the home consumption is increasing at a prodigious rate. Those of our operators who will persevere cannot help realizing bountifully.—Oil City Register.

A MILD SARCASM.

In a sharp article on the English and French armies, the London Review notes a point in which the English surpass the French—the number of useless half-pay men. It observes:

"There is an anomaly in the English army of which the French cannot boast, and that is the large flock of well dressed, gentlemanly, middle-aged men that are to be met everywhere in this country, and who belong to the half-pay or 'unattached' list of field officers. It is not to say that of hale, hearty gentlemen in the prime of life, who hold the rank of colonel or major, but who have done no duty for years, and intend to do none for a very much longer time, if possible, we have almost enough to officer a second army. Of this article of luxury our neighbors know nothing. They have but two classes of officers—those on active service, and those who, having served, are drawing their well-earned pensions. Of what use a plain-clothes body of men, who ought to be doing hard work in the colonies, can be to the nation at large, the French have no idea whatever; and we confess to sharing their ignorance as to the value of these half-pay worthies."

Major S. and the Indian.

Major S., who figured very conspicuously as a cool, collected and a brave officer in the war with the Sacs and Foxes, was engaged in many of those daring exploits which are so common to the hardy sons of the frontiers, and which, were they more known, would place the actors high on the "roll of fame." Near the close of that ill-fated struggle of the Indians, he walked out from his camp, as usual early in the morning, accompanied by a "fellow-in-arms." Having advanced some distance from the camp, they suddenly came in view of three Indians. They quickly drew their rifles to a level with their opponents, and the unerring aim and the keen eyes of the western hunters caused two of the three "sons of nature" to kiss their mother earth. Major S., dropping his rifle, but grasping his knife, made chase for the remaining Indian, who fired without effect. The major's companion tarried until he could effect the scalping of the two Indians whom they had killed. But a short space of ground was got over before the active major had gripped with his red foe, and unfortunately lost his knife before he had time to use it. Each had the other by the throat; and though a knife hung from the belt of the Indian, neither dared loose his hold to get it. The Indian, observing the approach of the major's companion, made a desperate effort to floor his adversary, but his active opponent parried the trip and threw him. Still neither could use the knife, for the Indian locked himself so close with the major, that he buried his teeth in him as they were falling. At this moment the major's companion came up with his two scalps.

"Tom," says the major, "have you got a knife?"

"Yes."

"Then cut this red devil's throat."

"Oh, no, major," said Tom, "give the fellow fair play—some chance for his life."

"You d—d rascal," was the angry reply, "cut his throat quickly. Don't you see he is biting me?"

"Well, major, bite him too. Two to one ain't fair. But if he masters you, I'll give him a round afterward."

"You infernal villain, if you don't cut his throat in one minute, I'll cut yours."

But it was not until these threats were repeated over and over again that Tom would consent to do this act for his commander, which he finally did with a very sullen air, as if it was a great piece of imposition to his enemy. He very leisurely drew his knife across the Indian's throat, as leisurely wiped it, and consigned it to its proper place, muttering all the while against his officer, who no doubt carried him through a regular course of drilling afterward, and impressed upon his mind the necessity of quickly obeying an order.

Capacity of a Cistern.

We often hear our friends say that they have had a cistern built of such a number of barrels capacity. As the rate of charge for their construction is often made to depend upon their supposed capacity, it becomes a matter of some moment to know for ourselves what we should expect for our money, otherwise we shall be at the mercy of the contractor. Indeed, the capacity of our cisterns is very much overrated in some parts of the country.

The Iowa Homestead, in an article on cisterns, gives the following statement, showing the capacity of those having the usual round or cylindrical form. Without attempting a mathematical verification of these figures, they are assumed to be correct, and are as follows:

A cistern five feet in diameter will hold a fraction over five barrels for each foot in depth; six feet, a fraction over six barrels per foot; seven feet, nine barrels per foot; eight feet, eleven barrels per foot; nine feet, fifteen barrels per foot; ten feet, eighteen barrels per foot. The last named figure is quite a large size for a family cistern, and ten feet in depth is as much as we often find. The contents of such a one, according to our estimate, would be 10x18—180 barrels, and yet how many of us have to pay for a "three hundred barrel" cistern of smaller size.

The Palestine Exploration.

Jerusalem is to be examined this year by the committee of the Palestine exploration fund of England. They have issued their programmes for 1867, and hopes are entertained that discoveries of importance will be made in connection with the great historic spots of the city. Capt. Wilson has put forth a memorandum, in which he says: "The chief interest centers in the cities of the Temple and holy sepulcher; the former might easily be ascertained if a firman authorizing excavations in the surface of the Haram Area could be obtained; but, failing this, excavations might be made to lay bare the western walls of the triple passage (supposed eastern face of the temple) to its foundations, and make such other explorations in the vaults as might seem necessary to make an opening so as to examine the character of the masonry of the western wall of the Haram Area north of the Bab-es-Silsileh, and another in the Via Dolorosa opposite the Turkish barracks, to see if a ditch exists there. The authenticity of the site at present shown as that of the holy sepulchre depends in a great measure on the course of the second wall, and there would be no difficulty in obtaining permission to make excavations in search of this in the plot of ground called 'Muristan,' where the hospital of the knights of St. John stood. This excavation would have to be made on an extensive scale, and there would be some trouble in exploring the most important part near the Bazaars." No doubt much may be done if the society set vigorously to work, and to this end they have made a fresh appeal for funds.

Anecdote of Webster.

The following new anecdote of the "godlike" is taken from Fraser's (London) Magazine:

"At the political dinners, of which Webster was rather fond, he almost invariably became tipsy before his speech-time arrived; and some of his most admired after-dinner speeches were the composition of friendly reporters. On one occasion he had to be prompted by a friend, who sat just behind him and gave him successively phrases and topics. The speech proceeded somewhat after this fashion. Prompter: "Tariff." Webster: "The tariff, gentlemen, is a subject requiring the profound attention of statesmen. American industry, gentlemen, must be—" (nods a little). Prompter: "National debts." Webster: "And, gentlemen, there is the national debt—it should be paid [loud cheers which arouse the speaker] yes, gentlemen, it should be paid [cheers], and d—d if it shan't be [taking out his pocket-book], I'll pay it myself! How much is it?" This last question was asked of a gentleman near him with drunken seriousness, and, coupled with the recollection of the well-known impecuniosity of Webster's pocket-book, excite roars of laughter, amidst which the orator sunk into his seat and was soon asleep.

Franklin as a Bookseller.

The following story, told of Franklin's mode of treating the animal called in those days "lounger," and in these "loafer," is worth putting into practice occasionally, even in this age and generation:

One fine summer morning, when Franklin was busy preparing his newspaper for the press, a lounger stepped into the store and spent an hour or more in looking over the books etc., and finally taking one in his hand, asked the shop boy its price.

"One dollar," was the answer.

"One dollar!" said the lounger; "can't you take less than that?"

"No, indeed—one dollar is the price."

Another hour nearly passed, when the lounger said:

"Is Mr. Franklin at home?"

"Yes, he is in the printing office."

"I want to see him," said the lounger.

The shop-boy then immediately informed Mr. Franklin that a gentleman was waiting to see him. Franklin was soon behind the counter, when the lounger, with book in hand, addressed him thus:

"Mr. Franklin, what is the lowest you can take for this book?"

"One dollar and a quarter," was the quick reply.

"One dollar and a quarter! Why, your young man asked me only a dollar!"

"True," said Franklin, "and I could have better afforded to take a dollar than to have been taken out of the office."

The lounger seemed surprised, and, wishing to end the parley of his own making, said:

"Come, Mr. Franklin, tell me what is the lowest you can take for it?"

"One dollar and a half."

"A dollar and a half! Why, you offered it yourself for a dollar and a quarter."

"Yes," answered Franklin, "and I had better have taken that price than a dollar and a half now."

The lounger paid down the money and went about his business (if he had any), and Franklin returned into the printing office.

Atlantic and Great Western Railway.

We learn from the Meadville Republican that the annual election of directors of the Atlantic and Great Western railway company took place at the company's office in this city, on Wednesday. Over 295,000 shares were represented. The following gentlemen were elected: S. S. L'Hommedieu, Cincinnati, Ohio; J. J. Shryock, Hon. G. Church, Hon. J. Dick, William Thorpe, Meadville, Penn.; Samuel L'Hommedieu, Robert H. Burdell, B. Vanderpool, John Gardner, C. E. E. Blakeslee, T. W. Kennard, New York city; Marvin Kent, Kent, Ohio; J. W. Tyler, Warren, Ohio; J. Riblet, Fallon, Ohio; E. P. Brainerd, Ravenna, Ohio; John Howard, Dayton, Ohio; Hon. John Sherman, Mansfield, Ohio; Charles Day, Henry Martin, George R. Babcock, Buffalo, New York; A. J. Allen, Jamestown, New York. The following gentlemen were elected inspectors for the next annual election: J. R. Dick, O. Hastings, J. Dick. At a meeting of the directors held in the evening, the board organized by the election of the following officers: President, S. S. L'Hommedieu; vice President, J. J. Shryock; secretary and auditor, J. C. Calhoun; treasurer, J. M. Dick; general superintendent, D. McLaren; general freight agent, J. M. Osborn; general ticket agent, E. F. Fuller. No other business of public interest was transacted. The re-election of the above named officers of the past year is a well-merited compliment to their ability in the management of this great and justly popular route, and gives us an assurance that if any improvement is possible, or any more comforts or conveniences can be devised for the benefit of the traveling public, that they will at once be added. Their motto is: Speed, comfort and safety.

Anecdote of the Revolution.

Col. William Williams, a delegate in congress from Connecticut, after having signed the declaration of independence, said to one of his companions:

"If we are defeated in our effort for independence, this day's work will make bad work for me. I have held a commission in the rebel army; I have written for a rebel newspaper; I am the son-in-law of a rebel governor, and now I affix my name to this rebel declaration. My sins are too great to be pardoned by our royal master. I must then be hanged."

The other gentleman answered as follows:

"I believe my case is not so desperate, for I have had no connection with the army, nor can it be proved that heretofore I have written or done anything obnoxious to the mother country."

The immediate and prompt reply was: "Then, sir, you deserve to be hanged."

"No Cards."

The Lynchburg Republican states that a few days ago a man and woman rode up to the house of a magistrate in Wytheville, through the snow, and producing a formal license of marriage, requested him to perform the ceremony. He civilly asked them to walk in doors, but they as civilly declined, alleging that they came in haste, and had to be gone, and that they therefore had no time to waste in unnecessary delays. The justice, therefore, stood before them, as they sat en chevel in the snow, and duly and solemnly made the twain one flesh. After the benediction, they left for their home, where we trust that they will not have to repent at leisure the rites that were celebrated under such singular surroundings.

"How odd it is," said Pat, as he trudged along on foot one hot, sultry day, "that a man never meets a cart going the same way he is."

A Russian Ball Room.

From a St. Petersburg Letter, December 29.

The dancing was carried on with a vigor we are hardly accustomed to in London ball rooms. In the third figure of the quadrille, for instance, the gentlemen joined hands in a circle, and danced round and round the group of ladies as fast as they could turn. There was a good deal, too, of shouting to mark the time, and the dances were very long to look at; what they must have been to the performers is a question I cannot [illegible] to answer. The cotillon, I am certain, lasted for an hour, and most of those who took part in it never sat down above a minute or two at a time. In the most republican of dances the whole company is mixed together. The Prince of Wales must have waltzed, I think, in turn with nearly every lady in the large circle seated round the space where the cotillion was performed. The crown prince of Denmark could not keep up with his royal highness, and gave in before the dance was over. The Princess Dagmar was indefatigable, and, as it struck me, waltzed better and longer than any lady in the room. It is no very high compliment to her to say that she was also the prettiest woman there. She looked better than I have yet seen her look in St. Petersburg. The heavy diamond chaplet was replaced to great advantage by a wreath of roses. She wore—so a lady told me—a white tulle dress, with a rich green silk pelisse, hair covering her shoulders; round her neck was a triple diamond necklace of great size and weight. She was apparently in high spirits, and with her cheeks flushed by dancing, she had a freshness of look very rare in any other country to collect in one room so many ladies of high rank and fortune, so few of whom had any pretensions to personal beauty. I have no wish to be unjust in my criticism, and I admit there were so very few to whom the word ugly could be fairly applied. Good figures were not uncommon, but of beauty, such as you see in any gathering of English ladies, there was absolutely none. The lower part of the face is always the weak point in these Russian countenances.

The letter carrier system is to be established in Richmond.

The New Missouri Senator.

The New York Tribune, as well as the New York Evening Post, in a notice of the new senator from Missouri, Charles D. Drake, Esq., says that he was a democrat by education. That is a mistake. He was educated a Harry Clay whig; opposed to Jackson, Van Buren, Polk, Cass and Pierce. He supported Mr. Buchanan and Mr. Douglas, and, at the start of the war, was with the south.

A curious habeas corpus case was decided a few days ago in St. Louis, by the circuit court. Mrs. Bord claimed possession of a mulatto child she had adopted from Tennessee. Having allowed the girl to visit Mrs. Pattmore, the girl preferred remaining with her. The judge decided the girl was free and could do as she pleased. On questioning her, the girl preferred to remain with Mrs. Pattmore, so the habeas corpus was dismissed.

There are two families which it seems it is the bounden duty of the nation to sustain—the Fessenden and Washburne families—of the former there are not less than a dozen fat and unctuous office-holders—of the latter even more. What would these poor white folks have done if the war had broken the country up?

GOODS AND MONEY.—Jos. Shauto was arrested yesterday by Constable James Creighton, charged with obtaining money and goods from Mr. Dupee, near the Mississippi and Tennesse railroad depot, under false pretences. His prospect for imprisonment is good.

A LIGHT FINE.—Mary Smith and Kitty Jones, the negro girls charged with robbing the rooms over the metropolitan police headquarters, on Madison street, were examined at the second police district yesterday, and fined $10 each. The property has all been recovered.

A HIGH NAMED ROBBER.—A woman named Mary Washington was yesterday examined before 'Esquire Creighton, charged with having robbed a man named Green, who resides in Chelsea, of some eighty or ninety dollars. She was bound over in the sum of two thousand dollars to appear at the next term of the criminal court.

THE FIRE ON SATURDAY MORNING.—The alarm of fire given early on Saturday morning was occasioned by the falling of some coals from a grate in a room in the postoffice building. It was not long before the fire bells gave the alarm, and the engines were promptly on the spot. The fire was, however, extinguished without their assistance, and before much damage was done.

ARREST OF A FORGER.—We learn from an evening paper that on Friday a young man presented himself at the store of Sproule & McCown, on Main street, and after selecting a suit of clothes, offered a check on the First National bank, signed by Kraus & Co., for $240. This was accepted, and a check given by Sproule & McCown on the Franklin Insurance company for the difference. Instead of presenting this check and drawing the money, as he might have done, he went to the office of the Memphis and Ohio railroad and offered the check to pay for a ticket to Louisville. This excited suspicion, and the check was refused. Col. Beaumont was informed, and he was soon found and arrested by a detective. The first check was taken to a member of the Kraus & Co. firm, at the theater, and pronounced by him to be a forgery. The young man consequently was locked up for the night in the stationhouse. He gave his name as George Harrington, but it is understood that his right name is Samuel Klipston.

WHERE TO GET THEM.—We saw a man on the street yesterday, attracting a great deal of attention as he walked along from the peculiarity of his dress, and as we came up to the corner of Main and Jefferson streets, we met our young friend Willie Jones, who has lately taken unto himself a wife. "How is your wife?" we asked. "Hush," said he, "I have no wife; I am going to sue for a divorce; I won't have her any longer." "Why, what in the world is the matter?" "I'll tell you; that fellow going along there, dressed so handsomely, met my wife at a hop last evening, and she has been going into ecstacies ever since; 'such an exquisite coat! such a charming little vest! such delightful pants!' and the whole suit only cost the fellow one-half what mine cost me. My wife never stopped till she learned where the suit was obtained, and she gave me the direction and started me for a suit just like it. The house is right up here—Reid & Bro., No. 15 Jefferson street." We advised Willie to go at once and purchase a suit of clothes for himself and one for us. The first he agreed to do; the latter "he couldn't see." The advertisement of this house will be seen in another column of our paper. Go there if you want a fit.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—As a lady was passing along Adams street, near Second, yesterday morning, the sleet on the pavement caused her to fall, which resulted in one of her legs being broken.

TOOK THE MEAT.—A man named Jno. Forney was arrested, in connection with Mary Washington, charged with having been a party to her adroit robbery, but he proved an alibi, and was then charged with having robbed Mr. Green, of Chelsea, of some meat. It was proved on testimony that Forney wanted the meat on a credit, and as that was refused he took it nolens volens, for which 'Squire Creighton fined him $10 and costs.

THE WEATHER.—The fine bracing weather we have had for some days past has given way to disagreeable rain, which made yesterday blue enough to have made a dozen of Frenchmen hang themselves. On Friday night we had a heavy fall of sleet and hail, which left the sidewalks yesterday morning glazed with ice to a considerable thickness. The Nicholson pavement would not be hard to take just now. By the way, when are we to have it?

WATCH PEDDLER.—A man named Pat Connelly charged a conductor on the Memphis and Charleston railroad with assault and battery. On explanation, it appeared that Connelly has been engaged in selling stuffed watches in the vicinity of the depot and on the trains, as the conductor alleges, robbing the passengers. He watched a trade going on, and, supposing that Pat intended to beat a negro, struck him two severe blows, whereupon he was arrested. The case will be tried on Tuesday morning.

A HORSE THIEF COMMITS SUICIDE.—A man by the name of Malary, says the Hernando Press, who stole a horse from a kinsman in that county some two weeks ago, and sold the same to a party in this place, killed himself at Coldwater depot, on last Saturday, by taking laudanum. It seems that remorse of conscience prompted the act. The horse was retaken by the proper owner, and the party to whom the horse had been sold recovered his money from the thief, against whom no charges having been preferred, was roaming at liberty up to the hour of his death.

THE CATHOLIC FAIR.—The fair which is to be held on Monday evening next at St. Patrick's chapel, corner of DeSoto and Linden streets, for the benefit of that church, is to be one of the most pleasant gatherings of the season. There will be nothing left undone that will tend to diffuse interest to all those visiting the place, and the motive for which the fair is given is most praiseworthy. The tables are handsomely ornamented, and the arrangements are most tastefully gotten up. All should remember that every cent spent in this worthy festival will either be used for educational purposes or put upon a temple which will not only enhance the beauty of the city, but rear in our midst a church whose power for good will be incalculable. Let every one who has any spare change attend and throw in his mite toward the good work.

MATRIMONIAL MARKET.—Licenses were returned to the county court clerk during the week as evidence that the following parties had been legally married at the dates affixed: Calvin F. Bateman and Miss Elizabeth Jones, Dec. 5; P. F. Gross and Mrs. Sarah West, Jan. 10; Thos. R. Martin and Lucy Ann Carr, Jan. 15; Jesse Simmons and Caroline McCollum, Jan. 14; Jesse P. Prescott and Mrs. Eliza C. Booker, Jan. 14; Austin Garrett and Mrs. Tabitha Jackson, Jan. 17; Alex. Fly and Mary Lattridge, Dec. 27; Thomas English and Mrs. S. S. Gettis, Jan. 15; Cornelius S. Smith and Nancy Wray, Jan. 14; Peter Diggen and Levina Allen, Jan. 13; Daniel Macklin and Kissie Taylor, Jan. 5; Sam Robinson and Laura Walker, Dec. 29; Monroe Brown and Sallie Carter, Jan. 10; Sherrig Hogan and Easter McIntyre, Dec. 26; Fred Jones and Eliza Green, Jan. 12.

THE BRIGAND—SYNOPSIS OF THE INCIDENTS.—Alessandro Massaroni, the Italian Robin Hood, was one of the daring spirits that seem to have been created to correct the unequal distribution of good and evil. Chief of a lawless band infesting the mountains near Rome, his name spread terror throughout Italy. No place was secure from his emissaries, and so skillful were his arts of disguise that he was often made the confidant of plots laid by his enemies to entrap him. He was a strict dispenser of moral justice; if he made free with the rich he was the almoner of the poor; and never did he resort to violence, but when a tempting booty and a stout resistance stood in his way. Like the famous freebooter of merry England, he mingled with his malefactors, and those who paid the dearest for his pranks were often the first to laugh at his humor. He was a very gentlemanly brigand, full of chivalry and romance; and his mode of detention and abstraction, particularly towards the ladies, was in such good taste, that they were fain to admire his gallantry, and celebrate his exploits in songs. A mystery hung over his birth. His mother was a young Florentine, who, having been seduced and deserted by some "puppy unknown," had died of a broken heart, and the only family record he possessed, was her miniature; which, even in the wildest moments of discord and rapine, produced in him certain compunctious visitings of nature, that showed he was deserving of a better fate—such was Massaroni: nurtured by banditti—hope their comrade—now their chief. The pranks of this bold brigand are amusingly shown up. He learns that a griping old steward, heavily laden with gold rung from poverty, is to pass over the mountain, disguised, for better security, in the habit of a pilgrim. This is a booty quite in his way, and he lays in wait for it, con amore. He commences a pretended game of chance with his patron, St. Eustace; he throws for the saint, then for himself, when fortune in this instance favors the righteous, and the saint becomes the winner of four hundred ducats. At this moment the steward totters in; when the brigand, naturally conceiving from his lean looks and tattered garments, that he is some poor old beggar commissioned by St. Eustace to receive his winnings, hands him over two hundred ducats on account, promising to place the remainder under a certain stone ready for him at an appointed hour. The steward, thinking his companion mad, suffers no conscientious qualms to deprive him of a commission so pious and hospitable; he therefore pockets the money, and, like a prudent man, returns anon for the balance. Now, in the meantime, St. Eustace like most gamesters, has experienced a reverse of fortune, and, after a continued run of ill luck, has become indebted to the brigand to the tune of ten thousand ducats. As the saint is a vigilant receiver, he is no less a punctual paymaster; and if he sends a poor beggar to collect his gains, he, by the same rule, despatches a wealthy steward to discharge his debts of honor. The brigand demands his winnings; the old miser raves, resists and roars for help. Massaroni summons his troop, snatches from the steward his pilgrim's staff and breaks it in twain, when out fly to the surprise and joy of the predatory party ducats innumerable! He next intercepts a hamper of wine on its way to the Prince Bianchi, which he turns to grateful account by drinking to the owner's good health; and kidnaps the Count Stroggi, an Italian nobleman in the Austrian service, who is journeying to the palace of the prince to partake of its festivities. In one of these mad frolics for which he is distinguished, Massaroni disguises himself in the count's clothes, and assuming his name repairs to the palace. This adventure costs him his life. He passes without suspicion for the expected guest, mingles with the company, wins a round sum of his host, and heats some diverting accounts of his own prowess. He is, however, suddenly recognized by the old steward, who had not forgotten the trick of St. Eustace, an alarm is given, the doors are closed, and all means of egress barred out, when a young painter, a friend of the prince's, whose life he has saved from an attack of his band, opens to him the only means of escape, and implores him to fly. The prince now enters, surrounded by his guard, when finding his prisoner gone, he commands his soldiers to fire at Massaroni through a window, as he passes along the court yard of the palace. The command is obeyed—the brigand falls. Anon he rushes in, wounded and bleeding, points to a picture that hangs from the wall of the apartment, utters a convulsive cry, and expires at the prince's feet, who, to complete the horror of the scene, discovers too late that Massaroni is his own son. There are other points worthy of notice; the scene where Massaroni rescues the two students from the predatory attack of his people, and that where he sings the popular brigand song, which is a delightful morceau. The music of the piece is pleasing and appropriate, and the force of contrast is very powerfully displayed in the part where the banditti are singing a bacchanalian air. Suddenly the bell sounds from a monastery on the mountain—the jovial strains die away; a solemn symphony gradually rises till it swells into the full choral hymn. The banditti prostrate themselves in deep devotion, Massaroni with quivering lip and averted eye, bows before the cross; the bell ceases; the crack of whips is heard; travelers approach, the music by a quick transition becomes lively and animated; the brigands are on their legs in an instant; an attack is sounded, and the whole scene is full of spirit and life. We remember nothing in melodrama more characteristic and impressive than this.

The play will be produced at the New Memphis theater on Monday evening with Vestrali as the hero "Massaroni." All the original music will be sung—several well known musical artists of this city have been specially engaged to give due effect to the solos and choruses. Vestrali is pronounced by competent critics to be without a rival in this character which will also afford us a fine opportunity of listening to her lyric accomplishments.

"INDUSTRIAL AID SOCIETY."

EDITORS APPEAL—Dear Sirs: In behalf of the ladies of Memphis, permit me through your columns to present to the public the object and action of the "Industrial Aid Society of the city of Memphis." After several preliminary meetings the ladies of the city have organized a society as above named for the purpose of aiding the industrious poor of our city by furnishing them with employment at their own homes or procuring them places where they can work for their own support. To accomplish the above worthy object the society propose to establish an industrial depot and intelligence office, where any one wishing work or a situation can obtain it, provided they bring a written endorsement from the committee of the district in which said applicant resides. We have not yet secured an eligible room for this purpose but hope to do so during the week. HISTORY OF A BLACK MORMON.—Jerry Simpson, one of our sable brothers, was fined ten dollars yesterday for an attempt to break up house-keeping, for one of his wives. From the story told by the parties at the police station, it would appear that Jerry, some nine years ago, was parted from his wife in this city and went to Mississippi. Before leaving the partner of his bussum, he said to her: "Now, Martha, honey, you keep single and I'll do de same; please God we'll come together some day." She promised as he required. He heard from her occasionally and all was well, but after a period of four years had elapsed, the startling intelligence reached him that the faithless wife had succumbed to another son of Ham and taken him for better or for worse. Jerry thereupon took a Mississippi chocolate colored girl named Lucy, to comfort him in sickness and in health, as he could not bear to live alone. For a time things passed on exceedingly well. Jerry lived with Lucy (wife No. 2) till the close of the war, when he came to Memphis and found Martha (wife No. 1) working out for a living, her husband, as she said, having run off with them no account yankees, (strong accent on the yankees), up to Illinois, and left her all alone. Jerry told her that the best thing she could do was to marry some honest "nigger," and he, as she had always been to him a good wife; "but be sure honey, and do it by de book, and whenever you wants a friend come to me, I'll friend you, sure." Martha still remained at work. Twelve months passed when she was taken down with the measels and turned out of house and home. She then sent word to Jerry that now was his time to fulfill the promise of friendship. This placed Jerry as it were between two fires—his Mississippi and his Tennessee wives—and the question arose as what it was best for him to do, as he expressed it. After praying long and loud to de Lord for help in dis 'mergency, his heart got relief. His conscience told him to take de lone ooman to his house and care for her. And I fotch a draymaster and bring her to my room and find a bed for her, and I tole Lucy she mus keer for her, and nuss her till she got well, an she done it. I paid de doctor bill an she got well. After that we all worked together and done the best we could. To follow Jerry and the balance of the party through with their story would take up too much space. He and his two wives lived together peaceably enough until Martha's renegade husband returned from the north; then came the tug of war. Tom wanted Martha, Jerry couldn't see it and ordered Tom out of the house, he went, likewise Martha, who took her bed and other furniture with her. Jerry ascertained the whereabouts of the goods, and arming himself with a pistol, hatchet, knife and other implements of warfare, he repaired to the domicil and proceeded to break up housekeeping for wife No. 1 in a very systematic manner, cutting up bedstead, safe, etc., and removing them from the domicil. Hence the arrest and fine.

RIVER MATTERS.

Weather and Business.

The weather changed on Friday night and rain fell. It froze and on yesterday morning the streets and levee were covered with sleet. The day was moderate and pleasant. In the evening it again commenced to rain hard.

Business was good upon the levee during the day. At Cincinnati the river continues to rise slowly. At Louisville it is also rising and full of ice. At St. Louis the Mississippi was slowly falling. If the swell from above doesn't give us a benefit soon, we may walk over to the Arkansas side dry shod.

Boats in Port.

Guidon, Rose Hambleton.

Miscellaneous.

The Ruth will pass up on Monday next.

The Guidon brought up a large lot of cotton, besides a fair passenger trip.

The Rose Hambleton had a good trip out of the Arkansas river.

The Die Vernon and Des Arc departed with fair trips.

Our river friends must not forget that at Charley's saloon and restaurant on Center alley, near Madison street, can be found all that could be wished for to comfort the inner man. Mr. Charley Plante is the head center of the saloon, and Mr. Charley Jones, for many years a well known steward on the river, has charge of the cuisine. They will not be forgotten by their many river friends.

Mr. Simpson, the popular steward of the St. Patrick, we regret to hear is laid up with a severe cold. He will, we learn, occupy the same position on the Dan Able. No better selection could be made.

We, in company with Capt. Isaacs and Mr. Blake, clerks of the ill-fated Platte Valley, and the agent of the underwriters, paid a visit yesterday morning to the wreck of that steamer. The tug Nellie Jones, Capt John Ford, conveyed us to the scene of the late disaster. We found the wreck in much the same condition it was in five minutes after sinking, only that the chimnies have fallen. The larboard guard seems to be settling in the water, while the starboard is evidently rising. Comparatively nothing, so far, has been saved, although the men at work on her have been fishing in the staterooms with grappling irons since yesterday. The tug brought six trunks, belonging to passengers, which are on the city wharfboat awaiting owners. The boat is now in charge of the underwriters and there is no probability that anything except the cabin furniture will be saved. The wrecking boat Salver will be at the wreck to-day and all that can be done to save the freight she will do. Should the ice reach here, as it will no doubt do in a day or two, there will not be a vestige of her in sight in twenty-four hours afterwards. Capt. Blake, with Messrs. Isaacs and Blake, officers of the lost steamer, left yesterday for St. Louis, on the T. L. McGill.

The City of Cairo has tied up at St. Louis and the crew gone home.

The Glasgow is coming down drawing six inches more water than is reported at Plumb Point. She'll have to go around, or stick and wait for a rise.

A St. Louis exchange of the 18th says: With eleven boats in port last evening, and several cargoes on them, the weather was so cold and prospects so unpropitious that navigation was to be again at an end. The board of underwriters have so declared, and warned steamers not to prosecute their intended voyages southward. Accordingly, all the boats that took on cargoes yesterday, either remain at the bank or have sought a safer harbor, with the exception possibly of one, which we hear proposed to go on to Cairo, in spite of ice, low water, and insurance agents. The thermometer was at 10 degrees above zero last evening. The spell came on so suddenly out of mild weather that it felt as if the mercury had run away down below zero. At a late hour last evening the wind was still blowing from the north, with prospect of a night of very hard freezing. The ice is accumulating, hardening and thickening. Perhaps less than five feet in the channel to Cairo. Navigation suspended. Idle boatmen numerous.

Capt. J. W. Terrel is now in command of the Henry Ames.

The Petrolia and Lawrence for Arkansas river, the Darling, Clifton, Champion, Sam. J. Hale, Robert Burns and Huntsville, for this port, and the Emerald, Emma No. 3, Armadillo and Silver Spray, for New Orleans, are on their way down from Cincinnati, or were to have left there by this time, but there is no certainty as to when they will reach this point, on account of the frozen state of the river.

Frank Burnett's boat contracted for at Madison will cost $70,000.

At Louisville on the 17th the thermometer stood 4 deg. above zero, and it was thought the condition of the river would be worse than at any previous time this season. Business on the river was suspended, and some of the boats had discharged their crews and were awaiting further developments.

FOR ST. FRANCIS RIVER.—The favorite Mollie will, true to her custom, be in port to leave on Tuesday next for all points on the above stream. Capt. Tom. Bowman is in command. Larry Harmstad & Co., agents.

FOR PINE BLUFF.—The regular packet Rose Hambleton with the gallant Capt. Claycomb in charge, will go out for the above on to-morrow evening at 5 o'clock. The Rose is sister to "Mollie" and is in every respect worthy the relationship. Larry Harmstad & Co., agents.

FOR LOUISVILLE.—The elegant, commodious and reliable passenger steamer Liberty No. 2 will back out for Louisville to-morrow at 5 p.m. Capt. Archer, the well known and popular, will put her through on time. Larry Harmstad & Co., agents.

FOR LOUISVILLE.—The fast steamer Stonewall will "go on her way rejoicing" to-day at 12 m. She will make all way landings. Capt. Haines, master. Larry Harmstad & Co., agents.

FOR WHITE RIVER.—Messrs. Levy & Miller and Jas. T. Bourne & Co., are the clever agents for the renowned steamer Commercial, whereof the equally renowned Capt. John Davis is chief in command. We might as well look for a revulsion in the laws of nature or a back turn on the wheel of time as a non-compliance with the established rule of this boat to go when advertised, and just as the sun goes down on Tuesday so will the "Commersh."

FOR ARKANSAS RIVER.—Capt. Ike Whittaker is a "jolly seaman" and though the "Gideon" is not a jolly-boat she is lively on the run, and offers as many inducements as "ary" other Arkansas traveler. Capt. Ike is a fiddlist, he is. Tuesday "is the word." Jas. T. Bourne & Co., agent.

FOR NEW ORLEANS.—We take pleasure in announcing the beautiful Lizzie Gill for the Crescent City on to-morrow at 5 p.m. We delight in giving praise where it is merited, and we speak truly when we say that this is one of our finest and best regulated steamers. Capt. O'Neil commands. Larry Harmstad & Co., agents.

FOR ST. LOUIS.—The W. B. Nance is up for Monday and will certainly go at 5 p.m. She connects at Cairo with everything in the shape of a conveyance to take one from the precincts of that "cherished spot." Billy Dill, passenger agent.

FOR EVANSVILLE.—The M. S. Mepham, Capt. Wood, master, will show her heels to our landing on to-morrow evening. She is a good craft and will go on quick time. W. J. Johnson is her agent.

The Cincinnati Gazette, of the 18th, says: In our money market there is no improvement. It is in all respects decidedly stringent, with no prospects of immediate relief. There is a real scarcity of currency, and bankers are not able, if they were ever so much disposed, to increase their discount lines. Deposits have run down to the very lowest point. We do not think money has ever been so scarce, except in times of panic, as it is now. Nor have we ever known good paper more difficult of sale. First class names, if offered on the street, would not command money at better than 15@18 per cent., and sales are made at those figures. Bankers discount for their customers at 9@12 per cent., but the value of money at present is not indicated by the rates. The pork trade is drawing to a close, and soon the drain of currency on this account must cease. Up to this time $6,000,000 have been paid out for hogs at this point, and the disbursements in the interior immediately tributary to this city have been much larger than last year, because more hogs have been packed at country points this season than last. It is reasonable to expect, therefore, the setting in of a return flow of currency at an early day. With this we shall have an improvement in money matters. There will be other causes, also, working in that direction. Orders are now here to a large extent from the south for provisions, which will be filled whenever navigation is fairly resumed, and buyers think prices are not likely to be lower. These orders are severally small, but in the aggregate they foot up more heavily than is generally supposed. Eastern dealers are also beginning to think better of provisions, and there are indications of a demand from that quarter. Taking these things into consideration, and presuming that congress will very soon adopt a financial policy that will at least remove the uncertainty which is one great cause of trouble, it may be concluded that the monetary stringency has reached its crisis.

COMMERCIAL.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY APPEAL,
MEMPHIS, January 19, 1867, 8 p.m.

General Business.

There was more that usual activity upon our streets to-day. Country orders were filled to a considerable amount, and our local packets went out well loaded with small lots of freight. The stock of meats on hand is very low, and prices are firm. Corn is held for an advance, and many holders looking for a continuance of ice in the river are storing their stocks for better prices. Hay is very scarce, while bran and shorts have disappeared from the market.

COTTON—There was a better feeling in the market to-day than yesterday. Prices continued very firm at our quotations. Holders, in some instances, asked 1c more, but buyers were able to fill all orders at from 31 to 32c.

The Louisville Courier, of the 17th, says: The buoyancy noticed yesterday in the provision market was fully maintained to-day, with an actual advance in the prices of all the leading articles, and the market would have been exceedingly active to-day but for the embargo on river shipments. The weather has turned extremely cold, the coldest of the year, and ice was making fast in the river all day, in consequence of which the underwriters withdrew their permits, or rather refused to take risks on cargoes. This has caused an almost total suspension of shipments, as very large amounts of produce and provisions are being got ready to ship south via the river.

The railroads, however, are in full operation, though the cold weather has retarded trains, and our dispatches announce a great snow storm in New York. The snow this morning in that city, along all the roads and rail routes was two feet deep on a level, and travel and locomotion was extremely difficult and almost wholly suspended.

Under the influence of the sudden cold weather the prices of various articles of produce, including corn, have a decided upward tendency. Yesterday the sales of corn were heavy and trade brisk, at a slight decline in prices, and a further decline was confidently expected to-day. The reverse is the fact, and, instead of heavy sales at more favorable rates we have to record rather a dull market at enhanced prices.

The tenor of the dispatches favor an upward turn for cotton, pork and lard, while in New York round shelled white corn has suddenly assumed more firmness. The receipts of hogs at the two packing points now in operation, Chicago and Cincinnati, have become very light, add prices of the product have in consequence materially advanced. The gold market has also taken a steadier upward turn, which naturally tends to enhance the currency values of all articles of consumption and trade as well as the current rates of import.

The sudden cold weather checked out door business very materially, and the attendance on 'change was rather meager, though buyers of corn and provisions were on the market.

APPLES—The stock is falling off. Good winter are becoming scarce, and prices are firm at $5 to $6. Common sell at $3 to $5 per barrel. Receipts, none.

BRAN—The receipts have been light for some time back. Prices are yet firm at $30 per ton. Receipts, none.

BUTTER—Choice finds ready sale, as the market is not well stocked. Roll and tub, 35 to 37c. For common there is but light demand—selling at 25 to 30c. Receipts, none.

BAGGING—The stock on hand is not very large and the demand is light. Prices are weak at 25 to 30c for both Kentucky and India. Receipts, none.

CORN—Receipts are becoming heavy, but prices are firm at $1 to $1 02 on levee; from store at from 2 to 3c per bushel higher. Receipts, none.

COFFEE—There is a good demand for all kinds, and prices are steady. Rio, 27 to 30c; Lauagra, 35 to 38c; Java, 43 to 45c. Receipts, none.

CHEESE—The demand continues good, with fair receipts. English dairy, 20 to 21c; factory, 18 to 19c; western reserve, 16 to 17c. Receipts, none.

CORNMEAL—A good demand exists for fresh ground, and prices are firm. Sales on levee at $5 25 to $5 50; from store, $5 50 to $6. There is no quotable difference between fresh ground and kiln dried. Receipts, none.

EGGS—Receipts continue light with a good demand, and prices firm. Fresh packed 35 to 37½c. Receipts, none.

FLOUR—The market is well supplied. There is a good local demand for fine brands, with fair shipping trade doing in commoner grades. Prices are weak and hard to quote accurately. Common, $7 to $9; superfine, $10 to $11; X, $11 to $12 50; XX, XXX, and all fancy brands from $13 to $17 per barrel. Receipts, none.

GAME—Wild meats of all kinds are quite plentiful, and prices vary daily. Bear meat, 18 to 20c; venison 10c; wild turkies, each, $1 to $1 50; ducks, $2 per dozen; prairie chickens, $5 per dozen; squirrels, $2 per dozen; quails, $2 per dozen; wild geese, $9 per dozen; rabbits, $3 per dozen.

HAY—There is a fair local demand for prime, which sells on levee at $30 to $32; common, $25 to $28. Receipts, none.

HIDES—There is a good demand at 7 to 8c for green; green salted, 8 to 9c; flint, 11 to 12½c; salt flint, 14½ to 16c. Receipts, none.

IRON TIES—The demand has almost ceased. Selling at 11 to 12c per lb.

LARD—There is not a large stock on hand. Prices are firm at 13 to 14c in tierces; and 14½ to 16 in kegs. Receipts, none.

MOLASSES—There is a good supply of new in market. Old has almost disappeared. The demand is good, and prices have not been effected by the incoming crop. Fair to good, 75 to 95c; choice, $1 to $1 05; syrups, $1 10 to $1 30. Receipts, none.

MACKEREL—There is only a light stock on hand. Prices are steady at $25 to $26 for No. 1; $23 to $24 for No. 2; $20 for No. 3. Half barrels and kits in proportion.

OATS—The receipts are very light, and prices advanced and firm. We quote on levee at 80 to 85c. Receipts, none.

SUGAR—The receipts have not been large for the past few days. The stock on hand is good. Crushed and powdered, 19 to 20c; A coffee, 18c; B, 17c; C, 16½c. Receipts, 25 hogsheads, 1 barrel and 2 boxes.

SALT—There is a good stock on hand and demand active. Sacks, $2 75 to $3; barrels, $3 75 to $4. Receipts, none.

BROWN & PERKINS'
Pianos for the People!
420 Broome St., New York.

WE would call the attention of the public to our elegant New Scale Pianos, in the following styles:

STYLE "A," 7 octave, Front large round corners, plain case, either octagon or carved legs, straight bottom, bead moulding on plinth	$450
STYLE "B," 7 octave, same as style A, with serpentine moulding on plinth, carved legs and lyre	500
STYLE "C," 7 octave, Front corners large round, serpentine bottom, mouldings same as on style D, carved lyre and desk, fancy carved legs	550
STYLE "D," 7 octave, Four large round corners, finished back, mouldings on rim and plinth, serpentine bottom, carved lyre and desk, elegant carved fruit legs	600

The above styles are all finished in elegant Rosewood cases, and have the full iron frame, French action, harp pedal, beveled top, ivory keys and key fronts, and exceed in overstrung bass nearly all the 7¼ octave pianos now manufactured. They are made of the best materials, and for finish, durability, purity and sweetness of tone, cannot be surpassed.

The four styles described above, embody all the essential changes in exterior finish of case, which are by manufacturers run up to 15 and 20 patterns.

We invite the attention of the public, of dealers and the profession, to a critical examination of the merits of our Pianos.

By avoiding the great expense attendant upon costly factories and expensive warerooms in the city, we are enabled to offer these Pianos at prices which defy competition, and invite all to call and examine them before purchasing elsewhere.

When references and testimonials are required by those about to purchase, instead of presenting a display of professional names, we refer to the parties to whom we have sold our Pianos. Their judgment as to the real merits of our instruments as to their durability, touch, sweetness and power of tone, standing in tune, etc., based on actual experience, being of far more value than the mere good opinion of the artist, however capable, who merely tries in a wareroom, instruments in perfect tune and order, which have just received the workmen's last finishing touches.

Our motto is, "Quick sales and small profits." Send for a circular to

Randolph Macon College, Va.,
In Full Operation.

THIS time-honored institution is once more in successful operation, with a FULL CORPS OF PROFESSORS. The chairs of the several schools are filled by able and experienced men. There are five literary and scientific schools, viz: Of Ancient Languages, Mathematics, Chemistry and Natural Philosophy, Moral Philosophy and Modern Languages. In addition to the above the Board of Trustees have established a school of Commercial Science, with the view of giving to the young men of the country a Business Education.

To graduates in all these schools, Diplomas are granted, and the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts are conferred upon students who accomplish a certain course. The high grade of scholarship formerly required is still maintained. We have a full Chemical and Philosophical Apparatus for the illustration of the subjects taught.

The location of the College is unsurpassed for health and geniality. It is situated midway between the mountains and the seaboard; and during a career of thirty-three years, and with thousands of young men in attendance, there has never been a death arising from malaria or other local cause. We profess to educate young men not only morally and mentally but physically also.

Board is Sixteen Dollars per Month. Tuition from $40 to $90, according to the number of schools attended. $250 will cover expenses of board, tickets for three schools, matriculation and contingent fees for ten months.

Rooms in the College free of charge, but the student provides his own furniture, fuel and lights. Young men who are preparing for the ministry and those disabled by the late war who are unable to pay their tuition, will be allowed to attend any or all of the schools free of charge.

This College is situated near Boydton, the county seat of Mecklenburg county, Virginia.

Arrangements are made to transport students from Ridgway Depot, on the Raleigh and Weldon Railroad, whilst a conveyance leaves Roanoke station, on the Richmond and Danville railroad, on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, and the Wolf Trap depot, on the same road, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

We solicit a liberal patronage from Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina, from the West, South and Southwest.

Students will be received at any time. The second term will commence on the 6th day of February next. Young men will be received and prepared for the College proper. For further particulars address the undersigned at Boydton, Mecklenburg county, Va.

THOMAS C. JOHNSON,
dec1 President R. M. College.

MEMPHIS APPEAL.

[The following lines, by Father Abram Ryan of Knoxville, the author of the "Conquered Banner" and the "Sword of Lee," will touch every heart:]

LINES

WRITTEN FOR THE MEMORIAL ASSOCIATION OF FREDERICKSBURG, VIRGINIA.

Gather the sacred dust
Of the warriors tried and true,
Who bore the Flag of our Nation's trust,
And fell in the cause, though lost, still just,
And died for me and you.

Gather them each and all!
From the Private to the Chief
Come they from hovel or princely hall,
They fell for us, and for them should fall
The tears of a Nation's grief.

Gather the corpses strewn
O'er many a battle plain,
From many a grave that lies so lone,
Without a name and without a stone,
Gather the Southern slain.

We care not whence they came,
Dear is their lifeless clay!
Whether unknown or known to fame,
Their cause and country still the same—
They died—and wore the Gray.

Wherever the brave have died,
They should not rest apart;
Living they struggled side by side—
Why should the hand of death divide
A single heart from heart?

Gather their scattered clay,
Wherever it may rest;
Just as they marched to the bloody fray,
Just as they fell on the battle-day,
Bury them breast to breast.

The foeman need not dread
This gathering of the brave;
Without sword or flag, and with soundless tread
We muster once more our deathless dead—
Out of each lonely grave.

The foeman need not frown:
They are all powerless now—
We gather them here, and we lay them down,
And tears and prayers are the only crown
We bring to wreath each brow.

And the dead thus meet the dead,
While the living o'er them weep;
And the men whom Lee and Stonewall led,
And the hearts that once together bled,
Together still shall sleep.

DRUGS, MEDICINES,

French, English and American Perfumery, Soaps, Combs and Brushes, Pomades, Hair Oils, Feather Dusters, Fine Wines, Brandy and Whisky.

EVERY article usually kept by Druggists can be found here. My stock is all new and fresh, and such as I can guarantee. To the citizens of Memphis, Planters, Merchants, Physicians, and all who are in need of anything in my line, I would take this method of assuring them that their orders will be filled upon short notice and with such articles as can be relied upon. To those of my former patrons, who have dealt with me up to the time I was of necessity compelled to sell out, I would cordially ask a renewal of their acquaintance, assuring them that our past and former dealings is only a guarantee of what the future will be, promising always to do the best I can.

The PRESCRIPTION DEPARTMENT being one of the most important branches of the Apothecary business, and one that requires skill and experience, will receive my personal attention, and during my absence will be under the control of competent and careful Apothecaries, accessible at all hours day or night.

Soliciting an examination of stock and prices, I am, very respectfully, your humble servant,

USE GALLIGHAN'S PILLS FOR CHILLS & FEVER A CERTAIN CURE

GALLIGHAN'S PILLS are composed simply of Vegetable Medicines. They are Cathartic Pills, acting upon the Stomach, Liver, and Bowels; containing no Arsenic, Calomel, Blue Mass, or any other Mineral substance. The great advantage the Proprietors claim for these Pills is that, without the aid of Calomel, Blue Mass, or any other Minerals, they will cure the most obstinate cases of CHILLS AND FEVER, DUMB AGUE, PERIODICAL HEADACHE, NEURALGIA, and all affections of a like character. Follow the directions, and you will find they will do all that is claimed for them. Try one box, and their own merits will recommend them ever afterwards.

☞ We have used Gallighan's Pills, and have never known them to fail to cure when the directions were followed, and unhesitatingly recommend them to public favor.

NEW SOUTHERN MUSIC BOOK

Just Published:

TABOR;

OR, THE

Richmond Collection of Sacred Music.

BY R. M. McINTOSH,

Of Virginia.

Essentially Southern in its main features, TABOR nevertheless contains a choice selection of the best Northern copy-right Music. Its author, for four years an officer of the Confederate army, composed many stirring pieces in moments snatched during its marches and countermarchings in Virginia. The dirge used at the funeral of Gen. T. J. Jackson, (Stonewall,) May 17, 1863, was from his pen, and is included in this collection.

"Mr. McIntosh," says the Richmond Whig, "is well known throughout the South as an author and teacher of finished excellence, with a musical reputation rarely attained by any man of his age in this country. In the South he stands at the very head of church music, no one disputing the position with him."

The book embraces everything of value of Southern or Southwestern origin, much of which is now for the first time reduced to written form. Its variety is great—embracing all metres in use, in every key and every variety of measure—with a full elementary department and fine collection of new anthems, set pieces and sentences. It contains nearly 300 closely printed pages, neatly and tastefully gotten up, well printed and bound.

Price, $1.33, for which it will be sent, post free, to any part of the country.

Single copies, for examination and introduction, sent to any address, postage paid, on receipt of one dollar.
